Alice Marble

American tennis player, known for her powerful serves and volleys, who dominated the women's game during the late 1930s. Marble was introduced to baseball by an uncle and resolved to become a professional baseball player. Marble's older brother introduced her to tennis in the hopes of diverting her to a "less masculine" sport. She played the game aggressively and pioneered the women's serve-and-volley style of play.

Pocahontas

Indian woman who fostered peace between English colonists and Native Americans by befriending the settlers at the Jamestown Colony in Virginia and eventually marrying one of them. Among her several native names, the one best known to the English was Pocahontas (translated at the time as "little wanton" or "mischievous one"). She was a daughter of Powhatan, chief of the Powhatan empire, which consisted of some 28 tribes of the Tidewater region. Pocahontas was a young girl of age 10 or 11 when she first became acquainted with the colonists who settled in the Chesapeake Bay area in 1600.
