6. Lee el siguiente texto y responde las preguntas (1 punto)

WHEN IS A QUESTION NOT A QUESTION?

The answer to this could be: "When it's a greeting". Take, for example "how do you do?". Although this ends in a question mark, it is not a question but a greeting. The correct response is to repeat the same question: "How do you do?"

And if a friend stops you at the street and asks: "How are you?" remember that this is not a true question. It is extremely inappropriate to give a long description of your state of health. A simple "fine, thanks" is all they want to hear.

If someone says at the table: "Could you pass the milk?" They will be surprised if you answer: "Yes, I could". This is not a question but a request.

And "Couldn't you go and bring it, James?" sounds like a question but it is a direct order to James.

Responde las siguientes preguntas con la información del texto.

1. How do you answer to the question “how do you do?” .....
2. What is the answer to “how are you?” .....
3. Do people want to hear a description of your state of health when they ask you “how are you?”
.....
4. Give 2 more examples of questions that are not really questions.
5. Do you have to answer anything if someone ask at the table “Could you pass the milk?”
.....
